JURY IN GILBERT CASE HAD BIG CELEBRATION

Attended Football Game and Then Had Thanksgiving Dinner at Murphy's

THINKS IT IS FAMOUS NOW

Rebate Case to Be Called Again To-Day, With Changes of Running a Week or More.

Imprisoned in a suite of rooms at Murphy's Hotel over Thanksgiving Day, the jury in the trial of the rebate cases now pending in the United States District Court made the best of a bad situation by spending the day in as sociable and easy a manner as the limits of the law would permit. Deprived of many privileges, although the members had heard but one day's evidence in what promises to be a tedious and hard-fought case, the unfortunate jury moved United States Marshal Morgan Treat yesterday afternoon that at the last minute he be released, and after a telephone conversation with Judge Waddill, agreed to permit the men in his charge to attend the ball game.

It was too late to secure seats, but a cordon of deputy marshals surrounded them and made for them a place against the inner fence, almost the equivalent of a private box, except that no chairs were provided.

Had Dinner and Slept.

Later in the evening there was a Thanksgiving dinner of monumental proportions, with Deputy Marshal John Murphy doing the honors with the turkey, while Councilman Garber, of the jury, served cranberries, and Captain Asa Rogers managed the gravy dish.

After dinner a box of cigars was cracked and the jury smoked only the finest, threatening extinction for one who asked for his pipe. Then there was a walk up Broad Street to see the crowd and the lights, with Deputy Marshal Murphy in the lead and Deputy Wood bringing up the rear; the phalanx making its way down the street with the impact of a football squad in full charge. In the jury room was a pile of newspapers, from which all reference to rebates and railroad freight rates had been carefully clipped. Each member of the jury was allowed, as a Thanksgiving privilege, with a United States marshal listening on the telephone.

All the married men availed themselves of the privilege, but so far the single men have been unwilling to undergo the ordeal.

Almost as Famous as Thaw's.

In a caucus held last night the jury voted itself already more famous than the much advertised Thaw jury, and only regretted that there would be no Thanksgiving dinner for the jury. Mr. good-looking woman as a witness. Mr. Garber held out to the last the hope that some of the rebate artists might yet put one on the stand to reveal some secrets and relieve the tedium of an involved and technical trial.

Members of the jury, who have so far rather enjoyed their enforced attendance, are L. C. Catlett, W. E. Carr, S. Goddin, C. L. Harrison, Allen Walker, Fred H. Garber, Asa Rogers, W. L. Venable, W. T. Richardson, Jr., R. D. Moore, P. E. Hinchey and R. D. Alcorn. United States Marshal Morgan Treat and his deputy marshal, Mr. John Murphy, are taking turns in guarding the jury rooms.

The trial of Alexander P. Gilbert will be resumed in the United States District Court this morning.

GOING TO WASHINGTON

Captain Lamb to Leave Monday for Short Session of Congress.

Captain John Lamb will leave here on Monday for Washington to take up his congressional duties with the opening of the short session of Congress on December 1st.

With the beginning of the extra session, which President-elect Taft declares he will call immediately after his inauguration, to revise the tariff, Captain Lamb will enter upon his seventh term, to which he was elected this month. He has had opposition for the nomination only once since the fierce struggle of 1896, when he defeated ex-Congressman Elliott in one of the hottest conventions ever held in the district. This was Captain Lamb's first nomination, and several years later he was opposed in the primary by Mr. Jefferson Wallace, whom he defeated by an overwhelming majority. Captain Lamb is an earnest and popular man, and has the reputation of attending promptly to all requests made of him in his official capacity. His chief interest is now in Agriculture, of which he is now the ranking Democratic member.

MR. KINSOLVING MAY LEAVE

Rector of Epiphany Church Has Two Calls Under Considering, Rector of Epiphany Episcopal Church, Barton Heights, may leave Virginia for other fields of usefulness. He said yesterday that he had not determined on any step yet, but had two calls under consideration. The young clergyman, who is a brother of Bishop Kinsolving, of Texas, married a daughter of Rev. E. H. Pitt, D. D., of Barton Heights, and his family has many ties, which would make the rector slow to break his pastoral relations with the Barton Heights church.

CELEBRATE IN OLD FASHIONED STYLE

Thanksgiving Day Observed in Richmond According to Immemorial Custom.

FROM CHURCH TO BALL GAME

Hilarious Night Spent in Theatres and on Broad Street.

Warm, bright skies of a November Indian summer marked an old-time Thanksgiving Day, celebrated in Richmond after the accepted fashion, with throngs on the streets, outpourings of people to the churches and football games, and by genuine hospitality, good cheer and every evidence of prosperity. Fully satisfied with Virginia's victory, crowds of people made their way to the playhouses in the evening, while others, unable to get seats, paraded the sidewalks in enjoyment.

The celebration began early, for from 8 o'clock on excursion trains poured their holiday-bent loads into the streets to cheer and wave flags and wear college colors until the game was called at 2 o'clock. A flood of the stores were open, but the ribbon counters, displaying the orange and blue of Virginia or the pale blue and white of Carolina, did a land office business.

In the churches the services partook of the festive character of the day, the addresses and music being appropriate. Catholics began the day with early mass, while Protestants gathered in their houses of worship at 11 o'clock to hear the reading of the various grounds for thankfulness. Presbyterians of the city united in a joint service at the Church of the Covenant, with the Rev. John Witherspoon, D. D., as preacher, while Methodists of Richmond and the city of Alexandria gathered at Centenary Church to hear a sermon from the Rev. Gliby C. Kelly, D. D. Services were held in many of the Episcopal and Baptist churches, and a largely attended rally of students of the city, held at Richmond College, was addressed by the Rev. Theodor H. Rice, D. D., of Union Theological Seminary.

While fully 12,000 took the afternoon to attend the game, no time was the streets deserted, Broad Street wearing its holiday appearance until far into the night, theatres and cafes having full houses all the time.

North Carolina people who lost heart after the collapse of their team in the first half of the game, looked up spirits after learning of the victory of the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Norfolk, thus dividing the honors even between the States, although the ardent followers of the pale blue and white the victory of their agricultural neighbors, following hard on their own defeat, proved bitter. Yet the sporting blood of the Tarheels kept them game to the last, and their colors waved undauntedly in defeat in the theatres and cafes, in the hotel lobbies and on the streets until far after midnight.

Evening of Enjoyment.

Social evenings crowded the day. Not only did society patronize the ball game, but followed it by a succession of afternoon entertainments, teas and receptions, winding up after the theatre with a brilliant german at the Jefferson Hotel. Family gatherings and dinners of a more or less formal nature through the city marked the evening, hospitality abounding on all sides.

The poor were not forgotten, for many churches and charitable organizations distributed food and clothing to the boys of the congregation hired a wagon and went through the city distributing to the poorer families of the same church, baskets of the good things of the season.

At the theatres college men, with their colors, had full sway, the Virginia alumni in Richmond having taken a Bijou for the use of Virginia men in attendance on the game. The play house was a scene of revelry, the college boys, whose yells rose again and again. Before midnight special trains bore away the college men to their institutions, and the other crowds, even in the city, were reported as being good-natured and long-suffering.

HURT BY STREET CAR

Wife of Colored Physician Receives Injuries in Accident.

While driving with his wife in a two-horse vehicle yesterday, even the colored Dr. M. Jones, of No. 308 North Third Street, suffered an accident in which his wife was severely injured. While driving on Twenty-ninth Street near Leigh, going in a northwesterly direction, a Clay Street car came up behind and struck the buggy, according to accounts given by Dr. Jones last night, throwing both of the occupants out, pushing the vehicle to one side and throwing one of the horses. Dr. Jones was not hurt, but his wife was found to have spinal injuries. She was removed to her home, suffering tenderly. The extent of her injuries could not be determined last night. Officials of the Passenger and Power Company are investigating the accident, in which the blame has not yet been fixed.

Guernsey's Second Thanksgiving

The Hotel Guernsey celebrated its second Thanksgiving yesterday, a large number of university men and football enthusiasts being there to enjoy the festivities. Being the latest addition to the Richmond hotels, the Guernsey has steadily kept its place near the front, mainly because of the exceptional ability of Miss Lettich, the proprietor and manager.

DANIEL WILL HAVE JAIL-BREAKERS AN EASY VICTORY NOW PENITENT

Friends Believe That Re-election to Senate Without Opposition Is Assured.

Friends of United States Senator John W. Daniel throughout the State appear confident that when the primary is called to nominate his successor in 1910 he will have no opposition, and that he will be declared the Democratic nominee by the State Committee, as was the case in 1904. The only suggestion of opposition to Senator Daniel's re-election came last year from former Senator A. F. Thomas, of Campbell county, who proposed that Hon. A. C. Braxton make the race, and indicated that if Mr. Braxton did not run, he might do so himself. If Mr. Braxton ever considered the matter, he did not let the public know it. It is not believed that he ever entertained an idea of running. Now it is said that Mr. Thomas has decided that he will not run, as he believes the people will vote for Senator Daniel. According to the latter's friends, he would probably win easily over almost any competitor, though, of course, they realize that it is much more pleasant for a candidate not to have opposition. Senator Daniel is now serving his fourth term, which will expire on March 4, 1911, and he has been re-elected in the primary party since his first election in 1886, when he defeated the late John S. Barbour, who was later elected as his colleague. Senator Daniel's friends regard him as the model of the Democratic masses of the State, and they do not think there is any disposition among the voters to turn him down after his long and brilliant service to his people, both as soldier and statesman. Indeed, the best judges of public affairs in Virginia have never for a moment seriously considered the probability of formidable opposition to his re-election two years hence.

Hollywood Memorial

An important meeting of the Hollywood Memorial Association will be held Saturday at noon in the Second Presbyterian Church. Discussions of great moment to the association will take place, and every member is urged to be present.

WON'T OVERLOOK OTHER BATTLES

Warm Contests Expected for Lieutenant-Governor and Attorney-General.

ASPIRANTS ARE NOW AT WORK

Place Will Make Races Lively.

In the campaign to be waged for State offices in Virginia next year, there will be two spirited contests, besides that for the nomination for Governor.

The one will be for Lieutenant-Governor and the other for Attorney-General.

The candidates are: For Lieutenant-Governor—Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, of Richmond (incumbent), and Colonel James R. Catton, of Alexandria. For Attorney-General—Colonel Robert Catlett, of Rockbridge (at present assistant to Major Anderson, the incumbent), and Judge Samuel W. Williams, of Wythe.

So far as can be learned, the aspirants for the second place on the ticket have done but little work by way of preparing for the real thing, though it is known that they have told their friends very frankly when occasion presented itself that they were in the race, and would make a canvass of the State if necessary at the proper time.

Mr. Ellyson, who will aspire for another term as Lieutenant-Governor, has a strong hold upon the voters, and is widely known from one end of the State to the other. He has served as Attorney-General, and has for many years been the chairman of the Democratic State Committee. He is also national committeeman from Virginia, and is serving his first term as Lieutenant-Governor.

As to Colonel Catton.

Colonel Catton is a lawyer of ability, and is a member of the House of Delegates from Alexandria city and county, in which capacity he has served for a number of years. He is a member of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, by virtue of which he is the floor leader of the majority, and is a member of the Committees on Rules and Courts of Justice.

Both Mr. Ellyson and his competitor did good work for the party in the recent campaign, the former in his capacity as State chairman, and the latter as stump speaker. Though it is probable that after the contest opens up Messrs. Ellyson and Catton will speak at a number of points in the State, it is not anticipated that they will make such a close canvass as will be conducted by the aspirants for Governor and Attorney-General. They have probably already done a good deal of preliminary letter-writing, and later on they will do much more, as a means of reaching the voters and informing them of their wishes to procure their support.

In the campaign three years ago Mr. Ellyson's competitor was Mr. James Alston Cabell, of this city, and the former won in the primary by a majority of 12,893. Cabell, who was elected to the State was elected by a majority of 13,865. Each made a number of speeches, going frequently into all the grand divisions and speaking in many of the counties and cities.

For the Third Place.

The race for Attorney-General is going to be a pretty one, and both the aspirants are well known to the voters. Colonel Catlett, who is at present the Assistant Attorney-General, and who, since the determination of Major Anderson not to stand again, has entered the race for Governor. A native of Charlotte county, and has since his early manhood been a faithful worker in the cause of Democracy. He represented Charlotte county with distinction in the Legislature when quite a young man, and later removed his residence to Lexington, where he now lives. He served as Commonwealth's attorney of Rockbridge for several terms, and then returned to his private practice. When the Legislature was called to order, he was elected Attorney-General, and when the Legislature was called to order, he was elected Attorney-General, and when the Legislature was called to order, he was elected Attorney-General.

Judge Williams, of Wythe county, who will compete with Colonel Catlett for the nomination, was born in Pennsylvania, and was one of the youngest soldiers in the Confederate Army.

Ran for Congress.

Judge Williams removed his residence to Bland county shortly after the war and practiced law from that point until several years ago when he took up his residence at Wytheville, where he now lives. He has served with ability in the capacities of State Senator and circuit judge, resigning from the bench in 1896 to make the race for Congress. He was defeated by the late General James A. Walker (Republican), and returned to the practice of his profession. Judge Williams has been twice defeated for Attorney-General by Major Anderson, the vote in the last primary having stood: Anderson, 48,846; Williams, 39,767. He is one of the Democratic electors for the State at large, and in that capacity made an active canvass for Bryan and Kern in the recent presidential campaign.

Both the candidates for Attorney-General are good stumpers and have spoken for their party nominees in every campaign in recent years. They will probably make a thorough canvass of the State in the winter months about to open up, and will speak in most of the counties and cities before the primary takes place.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL INSTITUTE TO BE HELD HERE TONIGHT

The quarterly meeting of the Church Sunday-School Institute of Henrico parish will be held at All Saints' Parish House, Madison Street between Grace and Franklin, to-night at 8:15 o'clock. Addresses will be made by Mrs. Edna Rhine Hastings and Mrs. Elizabeth H. Patterson, of Washington, D. C., who are both successful teachers in Sunday schools and have written books on the subject, which are largely used. A large attendance is expected, as these addresses will be very interesting and helpful.

Governor Returns.

Governor Swanson, accompanied by Mrs. Swanson, returned to the city from Pittsburgh on a train yesterday morning. He attended services at Centenary Church at 11 o'clock. The Governor made a speech in Pittsburgh on Wednesday night on the occasion of the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of that city.

MANY HISTORIANS ARE COMING HERE

American Association, Composed of Educators and Writers, to Meet at the Jefferson.

ON WILDERNESS CAMPAIGN

Distinguished Speakers Will Discuss Important Battles of Confederate War.

Washington, Richmond and the University of Virginia will divide the sessions of the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the American Historical Society, which opens in Washington city on December 28th, adjourning to Richmond the following day. The meeting will be composed of a distinguished body of men, including students and professors of history from the leading institutions of this country. The members will arrive in Richmond on a special train from Washington on the afternoon of Tuesday, December 29th, and a session will be held that night in the Jefferson Auditorium, when the annual address will be delivered by the president, Hon. George B. Adams, Litt. D., who will speak on "The Philosophy of History." The number on the program will be followed by a reception in the parlors of the Jefferson Hotel.

Dr. Adams is professor of history in Yale University, and is the author of a number of studies, works on European history in the Middle Ages.

Ambassador Bryce to Speak.

The association opens on Monday night, December 28th, at the New Willard Hotel, in Washington, in joint session with the American Political Science Association, the address at this time being by the Right Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador, the president of the American Political Science Association, who will speak on "The Relation of Political Science to History and Practice." This meeting will be followed by a reception given by Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce at the British embassy.

A session will be held on Tuesday morning in the ballroom of the New Willard Hotel, when there will be addresses by Mr. Joseph H. Hill, of the Census Bureau; Mr. William Nelson, of the New Jersey Historical Society; Mr. Talbot Williams, of the Philadelphia Association; and Mr. J. H. Storer, general manager of the Associated Press.

On Wednesday morning, December 30th, there will be sectional meetings in the parlors of the Jefferson Hotel. Among these will be the "Section on Secondary Schools," and a meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association. Wednesday night at a public meeting in the Jefferson Auditorium, the will be addressed by Dr. Charles H. Haskins, of Harvard University; Dr. C. Raymond Beasley, fellow of Merton College, Oxford; Dr. Oliver H. Richardson, professor in Yale University, and Dr. Charles V. Colby, professor in McGill University.

The Wilderness Campaign.

Four conferences will be held on the morning of December 31st in the parlors of the Jefferson Hotel. The first will be the University of Illinois, who will lead a section on problems of State and local historical societies; Professor Edward P. Cheney, of the University of Pennsylvania, on research in English history; Professor Herbert W. Hodge, of Columbia University, on research in American colonial history, and President Lyon G. Tyler, of William and Mary College, on research in Southern history. The annual business meeting of the association, with the election of officers, will be held that afternoon.

Thursday night will be given to a study of the Wilderness campaign of the War Between the States. General Edward P. Alexander, of the Confederate States Army, will speak on Grant's conduct of the Wilderness campaign; Colonel William R. Livermore, of the Federal Army, on Lee's conduct of the same fight, and Major E. Swift, of the United States Army, will close the discussion with an address on the Wilderness campaign from the present point of view. A smoker at the Jefferson Hotel, tendered by the Richmond members of the association, will follow this meeting.

On Friday, January 1st, the whole party will take a special train for Charlottesville, where a visit will be made to the University of Virginia, and to Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson.

Thanksgiving Fare for Prisoners.

Although water, or less, every prisoner in the county jail was treated to Thanksgiving dinner yesterday. The jail food was made up of turkey, turkey and cranberries, but the Brunswick stew, with pie as a dessert, was a most toothsome departure from the usual bill of fare.

PAY TRIBUTE TO SWIPES LANTERN AS A SOUVENIR

Plan Exercises in Public Schools on Nineteenth Anniversary of His Death.

In a series of general orders issued yesterday by General Clement A. Evans, general commanding the United Confederate Veterans, a request is made that all public schools throughout the South observe December 28th, the nineteenth anniversary of the death of President Jefferson Davis, by having the pupils prepare sketches of the life of Mr. Davis, or in other ways in the exercises call attention to the anniversary of the death of the leader of the Confederacy.

Special order No. 4 relates to a resolution passed by the United Confederate Veterans in session at Birmingham last spring, providing for the appointment of a committee to purchase the homestead in Kentucky which was the birthplace of President Davis. General Evans names as the committee on this subject the following: S. B. Buckner, Bennett H. Young, S. A. Cunningham, H. C. Myers, W. A. Montgomery, K. M. Van Zandt, V. E. Cooke, Keith Bolling, John H. Bandhead, T. W. Castleman, Basil W. Duke, Julian S. Carr, Thomas D. O'Connell, J. P. Hickman and John H. Leather.

In special order No. 6 Mr. Charles Patton, of Greenbrier county, Va., is appointed brigadier-general of the First Brigade, West Virginia Division.

You'll Have Friends

FLOWERLAND FETE MANY SPEAK ON HERE SATURDAY SUNDAY-SCHOOLS

Society Folk to Give That and "A Box of Monkeys" at the Academy Performances.

Everything is in readiness for the production of a "Fete in Flowerland" at the Academy of Music to-morrow afternoon and evening, under the direction of Mrs. Armistead Wellford, Miss Annie May Moorman and Miss Ella Binford.

The fairies will have it all their own way and will occupy the centre of the stage in the opening tableau. This vision of childish beauty and grace will be succeeded by a chorus, in which the snowdrops wake up. The names of the little people appearing in the flower choruses and songs have already been published. In this number will be introduced a motion picture, in which the snowdrops will lend color and animation to the scene. A Forget-Me-Not chorus coming after will "guess the reason why."

A quartet will enumerate the causes and set to rights the "Quarrel of the Buttercups," and a pantomime and song will illustrate the admonition, "Consider the Lilies." In this number solos will be rendered by little Misses Elizabeth Patten and Ruby Price. Then the Sweet Peas will be seen in a motion picture, before the "Happy Little Japs" are so happy that they cause the audience to share their smiles and their enjoyment of themselves and their performance.

"A Revel of Hearts" and "A Revel of Smiles" will bring forward the buds of this season and the debutants of last, and lead up to an appropriate climax, reached in the two-act comedy, "A Box of Monkeys," with which the performance will be closed.

The definite announcement that the little play will be presented will be a matter of interest, as several of the performers had doubts about being able to appear, and only decided to do so because otherwise the comedy must have been abandoned. All is well, the ends well, however, and the complete cast will be: Mrs. C. C. Walker, Miss Rebecca Walker, Mrs. J. A. C. Chandler, Mr. Arthur P. Wilmer and Mr. Henry Sydney Harrison.

Special features between acts will be illustrated songs by Miss Julia Joyner and Mr. Douglas Gordon and several numbers by Miss Moorman and Mrs. T. H. Winston.

KEPT MARRIAGE SECRET

North Carolina Couple, Outwit Friends and Attend Ball.

Mr. Hugh Wightman Nash and Miss Mary Lewis Fry, both of Greensboro, N. C., came to Richmond Wednesday evening for a party of friends, secured a license and were married Wednesday night. So skillfully was the affair kept a secret that the young couple, without any of the usual publicity, were married. Before leaving last night for a wedding tour the young couple dispatched messengers to Greensboro announcing their marriage.

TO PREVENT CRUELTY

Member of Legislature Would Stop Cutting Off of Horses' Tails.

One of the members of the House of Delegates from a distant county, who expects to stand for re-election, has seriously considered the feasibility of offering a bill making it unlawful for any person to cut off a horse's tail. "I thought of presenting such a measure in the last session," he said, "when seen here a few days ago, but owing to the pressure of other matters upon me I refrained. If I am re-elected and my colleagues think well of the proposed bill, I will introduce it in the coming session. I have often wondered that the societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals have not taken the matter up and inaugurated a crusade against this custom among horsemen."

If a horse thus treated is kept during his entire life by some wealthy owner, who provides him with comfortable stable, blankets, etc., it is not so bad, but when, in old age, he is sold to a butcher, and thrown out in the world to do dray or farm duty, his suffering begins, and, to my mind, this form of cruelty should be prohibited by law."

FAIRLAMB ARRESTED

Young Butcher Charged With Theft of Valuable Jewelry.

J. C. Fairlamb, a young white man, of respectable appearance, giving his age as twenty-three and his occupation as a butcher in the Second Market, was arrested last night on a warrant charging him with stealing a diamond ring, valued at $125, and a shirt stud, valued at $75, both the property of W. Clifton Hill. Hill was not allowed, owing to the serious character of the charge, and a preliminary hearing will be given in the Police Court this morning. He was locked up at the First Police Station.

Return To-Day.

Superintendent Joseph D. Eggleston, Jr., and Secretary R. C. Stearnes, of the Department of Education, who are in Newport News attending the annual conference of Virginia educators, will return to the city to-day. The meeting up to this point has been one of the most successful of its kind ever held in the State.

Institute Program Begins Sunday With Mass-Meeting at First Baptist Church.

There is much interest in the Sunday School Institute, which will be held at the First Baptist Church next week. The first general mass-meeting to which all Sunday school workers are invited will be held at 3:30 P. M., Sunday, November 29th. Dr. DeMont will preside, and the meeting will be addressed by him and Mr. Teah.

An interesting musical program will be rendered, in which the girls' choir of Broadus Memorial Church will sing. The subjects of the lectures in this training school for Sunday school workers are as follows:

Miss Hamlin, for the elementary grades—A Bird's-Eye View; A New View, Beginners; A Year View, the Primary Child; A Near View, the Junior Boy and Girl; Developing the Spirit of Missions.

Dr. DeMont—The Teacher's Personality; The Teacher's Preparation; The Teacher's Pupils; The Teacher's Methods; The Teacher's Mission.

Dr. Watts—The Foundation of Sunday-School Success; The Pastor the Natural Leader; The Superintendent and His Cabinet; Essential Organization of the Sunday-School; Holding a Full Student Body.

Dr. Knight—Survey of the Book of Acts, Part I; Survey of the Book of Acts, Part II.

Dr. Ray—A Missionary Policy for the Sunday School; Appliances for Teaching Missions.

Mr. Carnell—Architectural Possibilities of the Future Sunday School Building.

Each person interested is invited to concentrate his time and thought on Sunday school problems and opportunities for the entire week, November 29th to December 6th. Mass-meetings will be held on the two Sundays at 3:30 P. M. From Monday to Friday sessions begin at 4:45, and with an hour's interval for supper, served in the church, continue until 7:30. Every arrangement possible will be made for the convenience of those who attend, and all are invited to abandon their evening meals at home to enter the church in the morning. The churches of Richmond and Manchester.

The advantages of this institute are offered free to all interested irrespective of denominational affiliation.
